COMMUNICATION AND LEADERSHIP IN THE WORKPLACE - LEVERAGING YOUR PERSONALITY FOR EFFECTIVENESS

SUNDAY, JUNE 29 12:00PM-4:00PM

Location: Waterplace I-Westin

Instructor(s): Patrick Conroy

Level of Difficulty: Entry Level

Target Audience: All engineers attending the meeting

Have you ever struggled to effectively convey information to colleagues and clients? Do certain individuals irritate you and know how to push your buttons? Learn why this is a prevalent occurrence in the professional climate. This interactive seminar will leave you with various tools applicable to handling these recurring situations. An initial assessment of your personal style will showcase your strengths in the workplace. Understanding of personalities and behavior will increase your ability to leverage social tendencies in the workplace, making you more effective at what you do. This training is applicable to any individual who wants to improve relationships with colleagues, clients, customers, family, and friends.

Learning Objectives: To assist participants to identify and utilize the strengths they bring to the workplace, to appreciate and understand the strengths others bring to the workplace, and to create a personal strategy for handling workplace challenges constructively and productively. Presentation will include short lectures and discussions supported by PowerPoint, individual, group, and our-of-your-seat activities

COST: $90.00
